

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Magellan's Law bundles FileMaker Pro with qd documents software

San Antonio, TX - August 20, 2009 - Magellan's Law Corporation has announced that it will bundle the FileMaker® Pro database software with its qd documents™ Professional Discovery Edition software.

The qd documents software is based on FileMaker Incorporated's FileMaker Pro database software. Until now, users of the qd documents application were required to separately purchase FileMaker Pro. Magellan's Law has signed an agreement with FileMaker Incorporated that allows the company to bundle the database along with the application.

"Customers who buy the qd documents application will now get a copy of FileMaker Pro as part of the package," said Magellan's Law co-founder Jim Feuerstein. "This is a database application that has terrific utility beyond the qd documents application. It's the perfect database tool for small and mid-sized law firms. It works as a standalone database for the single user and also as a workgroup tool for the entire litigation department."

"And now our users get a free copy along with their qd documents application," he said.

The qd documents software is a tool for handling litigation discovery materials, including coded databases, text, images, transcripts and electronic documents. It can be used as a standalone application or as a workgroup tool. The product is cross-platform and supports mixed workgroups of both Mac and Windows users.

It is available now from Magellan's Law Corporation.
